

Seton Hall Days

SETON HALL HIGH SCHOOL • SUNKISE HIGHWAY • PATCHOGUE, NEW YORK

VOL. IX

NO. 3

DECEMBER 15, 1960

"ESSE

QUAM

VIDERI"

Modern Magi, led by Father Dunne, bring gifts of prayer, sacrifice, and good will to the new-born Christ.

THERE'S ROOM ON ROE BOULEVARD

When "blossoms flower amid the snows upon the holy night" there will be no crib more beautiful than the outdoor one at Seton. Figures almost life-size, beautiful in color and appealing in facial expression will invite passers-by to stop for a moment's prayer and meditation.

When all the trees have been set in place and lights arranged on them, the Roe Boulevard circle will be a modern Bethlehem.

This is Christmas: the Crib, the Christ, and His Mother — a God lying helpless on a bed of straw — Heaven come down to earth and become man. A crib makes one think and pray and worship. Here is revealing His love for all. Here is peace and humility and here above all — PEACE.

A Greeting

Sister Superior and all the Sisters wish you and your families the manifold graces and blessings of this holy season. May the Christ Child and His Holy Mother be with you and all whom you hold dear during the days that lie ahead.

Snowdrops Glisten;

To the music of the Recorders and in an atmosphere of glistening snowdrops, Christmas trees, and evergreens, gay couples will whirl and twirl on the night of December 16. The place? The social room. The time? 8:00 P.M. to 12:30. The event? The major social of the year: the SNOWBALL.

Plans are well under way to make this first date dance one of the gayest of the 60's. If you haven't yet had a peek at the table favors, the sparkling decorations, or the committee at work, you're really missing something.

Here's hoping that every senior and junior girl will be fortunate enough to be invited. Tickets, $3.00 a couple are now on sale.

Frank and Ray Direct "Penmen's Pool"

Under the direction of Frank Mazura and Raymond Connolly, Co-Editors of the school paper, two new journalism classes have been inaugurated. Held on Tuesday afternoons in Rooms 127 and 129 are WRITING ESSENTIALS classes for both freshmen and sophomores.

Frank Mazura heads up the freshmen group. Thus far, they have had lessons in headline writing, copywriting, and features. The group numbering 42, has sparkle, initiative, and plenty of promise. After an explanation of the subject being investigated, Frank has given weekly assignments which he has scored and returned. Some of the better papers will appear in print in future numbers of the paper. Judging from the fact that the class has increased from 20 to 42 in less than two weeks, this has been a most forward-looking venture.

Although the second group does not consist of novices in the field of writing, Ray Connolly also has a big job on his hands and is managing well. The cub staff which he is directing along the more advanced areas of writing should soon be ready to do some actual copy. By February, the names of these budding journalists will appear on the masthead if they do any worthwhile writing and if they continue steadfast in their attendance at the Tuesday afternoon classes.

Registration in both classes closed on December 1 with a gross total of 71 members.

